MONFORT GETS YEAR IN PRISON

Milroy Man Enters Plea of Guilty to Passing Fraudulent Check and is Sentenced.

TO SERVE IN MICHIGAN CITY

Indictment Against William Blake-mon For Blackmail is Found to Contain Impossible Date.

Gilbert C. Monfort of Milroy, charged in a grand jury indictment of issuing fraudulent checks, was arraigned before Judge Blair this afternoon and pleaded guilty to the charge. He was sentenced for one to five years in the State prison at Michigan City and fined five dollars.

In passing sentence Judge Blair said he would give Monfort a favorable recommendation to the prison officials and aid him in every way in getting an early parole. Monfort is 54 years old and seemed to take his sentence in a light manner. The prosecuting witness was the Rushville National Bank. Monfort passed a check on a North Vernon bank here for $20. He told the judge he was under the influence of liquor at the time and intended to do no harm.

In entering a plea of guilty Monfort asked for the mercy of the court. He stated in answer to the court that he passed four fraudulent checks and had made half of the amount of one of them good. He will probably be taken to Michigan City Monday by Sheriff Beabout.

William Blakemon, under arrest, charged with blackmail came near getting his freedom this afternoon. The grand jury indictment stated the offense was committed on May 20, 1912, which was an impossibility. John Titsworth asked the court to dismiss on these grounds. The indictment was shown to the court and Prosecutor Wallace Morgan. The indictment was quashed and Mr. Morgan, it is understood, will file an affidavit against Blakemon for the offense charged in the indictment.

Judge Blair sustained the clerk's appointment of James Mercer as administrator of the Matney estate. The case was heard Thursday. It was a suit to set aside the appointment.

The account and receiver case of Thomas Alsman vs. Wiley Hinton was dismissed and the costs paid.

The case of Sarah E. Hungerford vs. Thomas Hungerford and Melvin Hungerford for possession and damages was dismissed by the court for lack of prosecution.

The claim suit of George C. Wyatt and Company against John P. Holman, administrator of the estate of Orris P. Wellman, deceased, demanding $200 was also dismissed.

Today ended the February term, which was one of the heaviest in recent years. While nothing of a sensational manner was tried, it is stated that more cases were disposed of this term than any previous term since Judge Blair has been on the bench.

Judge Blair today made out the court calendar for the April term. The calendar is as follows:

AN INTERESTING LECTURE

"World in Cincinnati" Explained by Ross Parrish.

The Rev. J. Ross Parrish of Cincinnati gave a very interesting illustrated lecture last evening at the St. Paul M. E. church, explaining the Missionary Exposition to be held in Cincinnati. The first part of the lecture was devoted to the work of missions in general and then to the exposition to be given in Cincinnati. The work in Cincinnati is known as "The World in Cincinnati" and will contain exhibits from all parts of the world dealing with missionary work.

LICENSES WERE RENEWED

The Commissioners Took no Action Against Saloon Men.

The county commissioners this morning granted a renewal of the liquor licenses of the four applicants. The men applying and obtaining renewals were James Smith, James McCormick, Clyde Miller and O'Neil & Barrett. No fight was made against the granting of the four licenses and the commissioners gave their decision after the usual questions had been put to the applicants. Two more renewals will be heard at the April term of the commissioners court, these two being William Price and Both & Seanlan.

The commissioners changed the boundary lines at precinct 1, 2 and 3. Number 1 is as follows: Commencing in the center of Sixth street and Perkins, north to north line of Belmont; thence west to center of Main; thence north to north line of Rushville township; thence east along north line to center of Flatrock; thence in a southwesterly direction along center line to Carmichael's mill dam; thence west to center of Rushville-Smelser mill turnpike; thence southwest to intersection of Seventh street; thence southwest along Seventh to intersection of Sixth street; thence west to beginning.

WILL TRY PRICE AT GREENSBURG

Case Against Brother of Local Man Sent to Decatur on Change of Venue.

IS CHARGED WITH MURDER

Affair Took Place Last December in Jennings County--Trial Was to Have Started Monday.

The case of the State vs. Zack Price of Vernon, Ind., brother of William Price of this city, charged with killing Frank Cook, a tenant on his farm, has been sent to Decatur county on a change of venue. The case was to have come to trial Monday in Jennings county circuit court, but the change of venue means it will not be heard until some time this spring or summer.

The defendant is a prominent farmer of Butlerville and will probably base his case on the plea of self-defense. The crime with which he is charged took place last December on the Price farm in Jennings county. It is stated that Price gave Cook, the victim of the shooting, the money to buy his household goods and start housekeeping on the farm. The story of the trouble as told by Price is that he understood Cook was preparing to move and he went to see his tenant about the matter.

On arriving at the farm he spoke to Cook about the furniture and in the argument following, Cook is alleged to have threatened Price's life. Mr. Price shot four times, the fatal shot taking effect in Cook's back.

The body was left lying in the barnlot where it fell. Mrs. Cook is said to have run out and threatened Price, who hurriedly left.

Another version is that Price murdered Cook in cold blood and it is pointed out that the shot in the back is evidence that Cook was not in a position to harm the defendant.

Price was taken to jail where he has been held ever since. He was not admitted to bail. Mrs. Cook, the widow, and her two children, are living at Westport and will remain there until after the trial. She will be called as a witness.

WILL HAVE CLEAN-UP DAY

Knightstown Board Acts After Request by Women's Clubs.

The Knightstown Federation of Women's clubs has launched its campaign for a cleaner Knightstown. At the regular council meeting City Attorney J. L. Shelton, on behalf of the Fifteen to twenty representatives fix a general "clean-up-day" sometime this spring, when every citizen would be ordered to clean his sidewalks, alleys and all his premises. The board agreed to make this order for any day the Federation wishes to set. A request was also made to allow the Federation to install waste paper boxes at the corners over the city.

TIME TO FILE EXEMPTIONS

Taxpayers Who Are Entitled to Exemption on Mortgages Should Attend to It.

COUNTY AUDITOR'S OFFICE

Deduction From Estate Can Not Exceed Half of Appraised Value of Such Property.

This is the season for filing mortgage exemptions and if you are entitled to exemptions, you better get busy. Don't wait until the last moment. You can file the exemptions with either the auditor or the recorder.

Following are some items of interest to the general public concerning deductions on mortgage exemptions and other things:

An administrator can not take a deduction as an administrator.

A guardian can take a deduction for his ward.

A corporation or a co-partnership can not take a deduction.

An heir to an estate cannot take a deduction for a debt owing by the estate.

The holder of an undivided interest in real estate can take a deduction for his part when the mortgage is a joint one.

The holder in an undivided interest in real estate can take a deduction when a mortgage is an individual one.

A person is not entitled to more than one deduction, although owning real estate in more than one county. No person is entitled to more than one deduction.

Husband and wife can take a deduction when the title is held jointly, but if they do this then neither one can take a second deduction for a mortgage held individually.

No one other than an applicant can make the affidavit for a deduction.

It is simply the duty of the auditor to receive the affidavits provided for in the mortgage deduction law for filing. The board of review passes upon the validity of the claim for deduction.

No one can take a deduction on a building and loan association mortgage, provided the applicant obtains the proper evidence from the secretary of such association of the amount still due on this mortgage and then have the deduction made on that basis.

A person is not entitled to the benefit of the mortgage deduction law and also use the same mortgage debt as against personal property credits.

A person can use a surplus over $700 of mortgage deduction against his personal property credits.

Under no circumstances can a deduction from an estate exceed one-half of the appraised value of such property for taxation. This means the appraised value as shown on the duplicate for the year in which the deduction is prayed.

The taxpayer is entitled to his deduction, no matter how many tracts his land may be divided into, but he can claim but one deduction; that is, he can not have more than one deduction no matter how many mortgages he may have on the various tracts of land, or upon the same tract.

PLEADED GUILTY.

Joseph Whittaker of Orange township pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication yesterday afternoon before Squire Kratzer. He was fined one dollar and costs amounting to $17.45. Whittaker was arrested near St. Paul by Policeman Wolters. The affidavit was filed by Jesse Wiley. The fine was paid.

LOCALS READY FOR GAME

Are Confident They Will Win From Connersville.

Although the locals will meet Connersville tonight in a weakened condition they expect to win. Kirkpatrick, the star forward of the Rushville team will not play and it is said his loss will seriously hurt their chances of winning. The game will be called at 8 o'clock. Connersville as usual will send a large delegation of rooters. Rushville has yet to win a game and expect to annex the first tonight. Connersville and the locals will be tied if Rushville wins, as Connersville has won only one game.

PROMISED FREE RIGHT OF WAY

It is Stated That Traction Line Has Free Land From Greensburg to Newpoint.

SAY PROSPECTS ARE GOOD

Batesville Citizens Working Hard For Extension to go That Way—Committee Busy.

That the merchants and citizens of Batesville and Decatur county are still after the I. & C. extension is evidenced by the following from the Greensburg Review:

The Batesville Herald says that the prospects of procuring the right of way along the line of the proposed interurban line between Greensburg and Harrison, at fair terms or free, seems to be very encouraging.

We understand that the right of way from Greensburg to Newpoint has been donated by all the property owners except one. The line between Newpoint and Batesville has not yet been canvassed, but the prospects are that the people along that portion of the line will be equally liberal.

The line from Batesville east has been partially worked to Penntown, and quite a number of the property owners have donated the right-of-way. Others, no doubt, will, and the cost for right-of-way between here and Penntown will be but little.

East of Penntown to St. Leon, the prospects for free right-of-way over most of the line, seems flattering. Harry Schwier, secretary of the Batesville committee has been in communication with parties at Lawrenceville and from letters received from leading citizens at that place the people there, and at St. Leon, and between those two towns are enthusiastically in favor of the road and will grant a free right-of-way over their property.

A letter from Philip Hoff gives the right-of-way over his place and states in his letter that all living between Lawrenceville and St. Leon will do the same. Adam Salm, the miller at Lawrenceville writes an enthusiastic letter offering the right-of-way over his place and says all the people between Lawrenceville and St. Leon will give the right-of-way free.

GEORGE SMALLEY FINED $120 BY JURY

Was Found Guilty as Charged in Indictment of Selling Mortgaged Property.

MAY ASK FOR NEW TRIAL

The jury in the case of the State against George P. Smalley, a local liveryman, found him guilty of selling mortgaged property as charged in a grand jury indictment and imposed a fine of $120. The jury was out probably an hour before returning the verdict. Smalley was charged with selling a mortgaged horse to John H. Brumfield of Connersville. Brumfield appeared against Smalley and was the only witness introduced by the State. It is understood that Smalley may apply for a new trial.

NEW SALEM WINS.

In the fastest game of basketball ever witnessed on the New Salem floor the Falmouth team was defeated last night by the score of 20 to 6. The New Salem center was the star and outplayed all the other players.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cryer of Indianapolis, formerly of this city, will become permanent residents of Cincinnati soon. Mr. Cryer will open a shoe store in Walnut Hills.

Bert Osborn defeated Clifford Jarvis, 100 to 62 last night in the pool tournament. The game was one of the best of the tournament and was close, especially in the early stages. Toward the finish Osborn drew away from Jarvis and won in an easy manner.

Before the contest Arville Murray of South Bend gave an exhibition of fancy shots. Murray made difficult shots in an easy manner and his work was the best ever seen here.

The Young Woman's Mission Circle of the Main Street Christian church which was to have been held Monday night has been postponed for one week.

Fruit trees from California will be planted in Egypt by an English company which has secured a large tract of land with a view of engaging in the fruit growing industry on an extensive scale.

AMUNDSEN'S BOLD DASH TOLD IN HIS OWN WORDS

Details of Discovery of South Pole.

CONQUEST OF NATURE

Ice-Locked Land to the South Invaded for First Time.

DEED OF DARING NORSEMAN

Captain Amundsen's Own Story of Reaching South Pole.

BY ROALD AMUNDSEN.

Hobart, Tasmania, March 8, 11:20 a.m.—On the 10th of February, 1911, we commenced to work our way toward the south, from that day to the 11th of April establishing three depots, which in all contained a quantity of provisions of about 3,000 kilos. One thousand, six hundred kilos, including 1,100 kilos of seal meat, were cached in 80 degrees, 700 kilos in 81 degrees, and 800 kilos in 82 degrees south latitude.

As no landmarks were to be seen, these depots were marked with flags, seven kilometers on each side in the easterly and westerly directions.

The ground and the state of the barrier were of the best, and specially well adapted to driving with dogs. On Feb. 15 we had thus traveled about 100 kilometers. The weight of the sledges was 300 kilos, and the number of dogs was six for each sledge. The surface of the barrier was smooth and fine. The crevices were very local and were found dangerous in only two places; for the rest long, smooth undulations.

The weather was excellent, calm or a light breeze. The lowest temperature on these depot trips was minus 45 centigrade (49 degrees below zero, fahrenheit). On the 4th of March, on our return from the first trip beginning on the 15th of February, we found out that the Fram had already left us. With pride and delight we heard that her smart captain had succeeded in sailing her furthest south and there hoisting the colors of his country—a glorious moment for him and his comrades. The furthest north and the furthest south! Good old Fram! The highest south latitude attained was 78 degrees 41 minutes.

Winter on the Ice Barrier.

Before the arrival of winter we had 6,000 kilos of seal meat in the depots, enough for ourselves and 110 dogs. Eight doghouses, a combination of tents and snow huts, were built.

Having cared for the dogs, the turn came to use our solid little hut. It was almost entirely covered with snow by the middle of April. First we had to get light and air. The lux lamp, which had a power of 200 standard candles, gave us a brilliant light and kept the temperature up to 20 degrees celsius (68 deg. fahrenheit) throughout the winter, and our excellent ventilation system gave us all the air we wanted.

In direct communication with the hut and dug-out on the barrier were shops, packing rooms, cellars for provisions, coal, wood and oil, a plain bath, a steam bath, and observatories. Thus we had everything within doors if the weather should be too cold and stormy.

The sun left us on the 22nd of April and did not return until four months later. The winter was spent in changing our whole outfit, which on the depot trips was found to be too clumsy and solid for the smooth surface of the barrier. Besides this, as much scientific work as possible was done, and some astonishing meteorological observations were taken.

Open Water All Winter.

There was very little snow. There was open water close by throughout the winter. For the same reason higher temperature had been expected, but it remained very low.

In five months there were observed temperatures between -50 and -60 degrees celsius (58 and 76 degrees below zero fahrenheit), the lowest temperature, on the 13th of August, being -59 degrees celsius. It was then calm. On the 1st of August the temperature was -53 degrees celsius, and there were six meters of wind. The mean temperature for the year was -26 celsius (14.8 below zero fahrenheit).

I had expected hurricane after hurricane, but I observed only two moderate storms and many excellent auroras-australis in all directions.

The sanitary conditions were of the best all the winter, and when the sun returned on the 24th of August he met the men sound in mind and body and ready to set about the task that had to be solved.

Already, the day before, we had brought out sledges to the starting place for our march toward the south. Only in the beginning of September did the temperature rise to such an extent that there was any question of setting out.

First Start For the Pole.

On the 8th of September eight men with seven sledges, ninety dogs and provisions for four months, started. The ground was perfect. The temperature was not bad. The next day it appeared that we had started too early, as the temperature of the following days fell and was kept steady between -50 and -60 celsius (58 degrees and 76 degrees below zero fahrenheit). Personally we did not suffer at all from this cold. Our good furs protected us. But with our dogs it was a different matter. It could easily be seen that they shrank from day to day, and we understood pretty soon that they could not stand the long run to our depot at 80 degrees south. We agreed on returning and to wait for the arrival of spring. The provisions were cached, and off we went for the hut. With the exception of the loss of a few dogs and a couple of frozen heels, everything was all right. In the middle of October spring came in earnest. Seals and birds appeared. The temperature was steady between 20 and 30 celsius (68 and 86 degrees fahrenheit).

The original plan that all of us should go toward the south had been changed. Five men had to do this work, while the others were to start for the east and visit King Edward VII. land. This last mentioned trip was not included in our program, but, owing to the fact that the English had not reached it, at least this summer, as was their intention, we agreed that the best thing to do was also to make this trip. On Oct. 20 the southern party started—five men, four sledges, fifty-two dogs, and provisions for four months; everything in excellent order.

The Journey to the Pole.

We had made up our minds to take the first part of the trip as easily as possible, in order to give ourselves and the dogs a rational training, and on the 23d we made our depot in 80 degrees south. We went right ahead. In spite of the dense fog an error of two or three kilometers happened once in a while, but we were caught by the flagmarks, and found these on our way without difficulty.

Having rested and fed the dogs on all the seal meat they were able to eat, we started again on the 26th, with the temperature steadily between -20 and -30 celsius (14 and 22 degrees below zero fahrenheit). From the start it was the intention not to drive more than thirty kilometers a day, but it appeared that this was too little for our strong, willing animals. At 80 degrees south we began to build snow caissons of a man's height, in order to have marks on our return trip. On the 31st we reached the depot at 81 degrees, and stopped there one day and fed the dogs on as much pemmican as they wanted.

We reached the depot at 82 degrees on the 5th of November, where the dogs for the last time got all they wanted to eat. On the 8th southward again, with a daily march of fifty kilometers.

In order to lighten our heavy sledges we established depots at each degree of latitude.

Like a Pleasure Trip.

The trip from 82 degrees to 83 degrees became a pleasure trip, excellent ground, fine sledging and an even temperature. Everything went like a dream.

On the 9th we sighted South Victoria Land and the continuation of the mountain range which Sir Ernest Shackleton mentioned in his chart as running toward the southeast from the Beardmore glacier, and on the same day we reached 83 degrees and established here depot No. 4. On the 11th we made the interesting discovery that the Ross barrier terminated in a bight toward the southeast at 86 degrees south latitude and 163 degrees west longitude, formed between the southeast mountain range running from South Victoria Land and a range on the opposite side running in a southwesterly direction, probably a continuation of King Edward VII. land. On the 13th we reached 84 degrees, where we established a depot; on the 16th we were at 85 degrees, where, also, we made a depot.

From our winter quarters, "Framheim," 78 degrees 38 minutes, south latitude, we had been marching due south. On the 17th of November, at 85 degrees, we arrived at a place where the land and barrier were connected. This was done without any great difficulty. The barrier here rose in undulations to about 300 feet. Some few big crevices indicated the limited boundary. Here we made our head depot, taking provisions for sixty days on sledges, and leaving thirty days' provisions on the spot.

The land under which we lay and which we now had to attack looked quite imposing. The nearest summits along the barrier had a height from 2,000 to 10,000 feet, but several others further south were 15,000 feet or more.

The next day we began the climb. The first part of it was an easy task, light stops and well-filled mountain sides. It did not take a long time, for our willing dogs worked their way up. Further up we met with some small but very steep glaciers. Here we had to harness twenty dogs to each sledge and take the four sledges in two turns. In some places it was so steep that it was difficult enough to use our skis.

Some big crevices forced us from time to time to make detours. The first day we climbed 2,000 feet, the next day mostly up some small glaciers, camping at a height of 4,500 feet. The third day we were obliged to go down on a mighty glacier, "Axel Heiberg's glacier," which divided the coast mountains and the mountains further south.

The next day began the longest part of our climb. Many detours had to be made in order to avoid broad cracks and open crevices. These were apparently mostly filled up, as the glaciers in all probability had long ago stopped moving, but we had to be very careful, never knowing for certain how thick the layer that covered them.

Our camp that night lay in very picturesque surroundings at a height of 5,000 feet. The glacier here was narrowed in between the two 15,000-foot high mountains, the "Fridtjof Nansen" and the "Don Pedro Christensen."

From the bottom of the glacier rose Mount "Ole Engelstad," a big snow cone 13,500 feet high.

Day's Splendid Work.

The glacier was very much broken in this comparatively narrow pass. The

GRANDMOTHERS USED SAGE TEA

To Darken the Hair and Restore Gray and Faded Hair to Its Natural Color.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair and are fast following suit.

The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready-to-use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy.

As a scalp tonic and color restorer this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers.

The growth and beauty of the hair depends on a healthy condition of the scalp. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy quickly kills the dandruff germs which rob the hair of its life, color and lustre, makes the scalp clean and healthy, gives the hair strength, color and beauty, and makes it grow.

WHAT A CHANCE FOR A YOUNG MAN MEANS NOW.

The young men from the country come to the city full of expectation for the future. With many of them expectation is greater than ambition, and such fall an easy mark to those lazy, indifferent, insipid fellows who tell the newcomers "There are no chances any more." In proof they point out this millionaire who had the good "luck" to land in the town without a dollar but when a day's work paid for an acre of land which today is worth thousands of dollars per front foot. Inasmuch as those particular conditions are not the conditions of today, therefore there are no opportunities. They do not realize that in those early days there were scores and hundreds of young men who talked then just as they do now, and who were equally blind to the paths of fortune.

A young man recently from the country who did not seem to be making the rapid advance he expected, was talking with the head of the concern for whom he worked and the latter said to the boy:

"What! no chance for a beginner? Young man look out that window! See those sky scrapers on every hand? Well, those buildings are running over with opportunities of every kind—professional and commercial. They are filled with banks and big corporations. It takes men of brains and experience to conduct these enterprises, and such men command big salaries because they are scarce. It takes years of hard work and long hours to fit for the management of presidency of the enterprises over there, and only one young man out of hundreds seems to have the ambition and perseverance to make good. There are plenty of positions paying from $5,000 to $25,000 a year waiting for you; take your pick. You can have any one of them you really want, if you will only fit yourself for the job. The great trouble today in big concerns is to find competent men big enough to fill big places. You are now 22 years of age. If you will play the game fairly, according to the rules, which are honesty, perseverance, morality and your-mind-intensely-on-the-job all the time, when you are 45 and perhaps sooner, you will have landed in the place you can select this minute. Unusual natural ability combined with the qualities named may make short cut to success, but fellows with less natural ability who earnestly fulfil the other requirements will win where the more brilliant man, neglecting them, fails."

Just then the lights began flaring from one office after another along the walls of towering buildings, like so many opening eyes. "Young man, your opportunities are already calling you; select your beacon and win it."

The noon-day luncheon yesterday at the Social club given by Miss Frances Capp in honor of Miss Hazel Cox and Mrs. W. C. Kettnering of Defiance, Ohio, was a very delightful function. A very tasty luncheon was served in several courses. Covers were laid for twenty-eight guests, seated four at a table. The color scheme for the decorations was in pink. Each table was set off with pink candlesticks and pink carnations. Smilax was used promiscuously and to great effect. Pink carnations were given as favors. The place cards were tiny bridal slippers. Following the luncheon the guests danced and played cards until late in the afternoon.

Honey Bread.

In Europe, where the food value of honey seems to be much better understood than in the United States, enormous quantities are used. Of late years we seem to be waking to a realization of the value of honey as a wholesome and delicious article of food, and also as to its preservative qualities. Cakes and sweetbreads made with sugar corn become dry and crumbly, and to get the good of them must be eaten when fresh; but when they are made up with honey, they seem to retain their moist freshness indefinitely. In France honey bread a year or eighteen months old is preferred to that just made. They say: "It has ripened." It is the preservative, or rather the unchanging, quality of honey that makes it so popular with the best confectioners.—The Christian Herald.

Her luncheon had fortunately escaped unharmed. In a big pocket of her short skirt there was a small flask of whiskey, which her Uncle Robert had required her to take with her. She felt sick and faint, but she knew that she must eat if she was to make the journey difficult as it might prove, back to the camp. She forced herself to take the first mouthful of bread and meat she had brought with her, but when she had tasted she needed no further incentive, she ate to the last crumb; she thought this was the time she needed stimulants, too, and mingling the cold water from the brook with a little of the ardent spirit from the flask, she drank. Some of the chill had worn off, some of the fatigue had gone.

She rose to her feet and started down the canon; her bloody sweater still lay on the ground with other things of which she was heedless. It had grown colder, but she realized that the climb down the canon would put her stagnant blood in circulation and all would be well.

Before she began the descent of the pass, she cast one long glance backward whether the man had gone. Whence came he, who was he, what had he seen, where was he now? She thanked God for his interference in one breath and hated him for his presence in the other.

The whole sky was now black with drifting clouds, lightning flashed above her head, muttered peals of thunder, terrifically ominous, rocked through the silent hills. The noise was low and subdued, but almost continuous. With a singular and uneasy feeling that she was being observed, she started down the canon, plunging desperately through the trees, leaping the brook from side to side where it narrowed, seeking ever the easiest way. She struggled on, panting with sudden inexplicable terror almost as bad as that which had overwhelmed her an hour before—and growing more intense every moment, to such a tragic pass had the day and its happenings brought her.

Poor girl, awful experience really was to be hers that day. The fates sported with her—bodily fear, outraged modesty, mental anguish and now the terror of the storm.

The clouds seemed to sink lower, until they almost closed about her. Long gray ghostly arms reached out toward her. It grew darker and darker in the depths of the canon. She screamed aloud—in vain.

Suddenly the rolling thunder peals concentrated, balls of fire leaped out of the heavens and struck the mountains where she could actually see them. There were not words to describe the tremendous crashings which seemed to splinter the hills, to be succeeded by brief periods of silence, to be followed by louder and more terrific detonations.

In one of those appalling alternations from sound to silence she heard a human cry—an answering cry to her own? It came from the hills bereveled in his isolation. What had been punishment, expiation, had at last become pleasure.

Civilization was bursting through the hills in every direction, railways were being pushed hither and thither, the precious metals were being discovered at various places and after them came hoards of men and with them—God save the mark—women; but his section of the country had hitherto been unvisited even by hunters, explorers, miners or pleasure seekers. He was glad, as he had grown to love the spot where he had made his home, and he had no wish to be forced, like little Joe, to move on.

Once a man who loved the strife, noble or ignoble, of the madding crowd, he had grown accustomed to silence, habituated to solitude. Winter and summer alike he roamed the mountains, delving into every forest, exploring every hidden canyon, surmounting every inaccessible peak; no storm, no snow, no condition of wind or weather daunted him or stopped him. He had no human companion by which to try his mettle, but nevertheless over the world of the material which lay about him he was a master as was a man.

He found some occupation, too, in the following of old Adam's inheritance; during the pleasant months of summer he made such garden as he could. His profession of mining engineer gave him other employment. Round about him lay treasures inestimable, precious metals abounded in the hills. He had located them, tested, analyzed, estimated the wealth that was his for the taking—it was as useless to him as the doubloons and golden guineas were to Selkirk on his island. Yet the knowledge that it was there gave him an energizing sense of potential power, unconsciously enormously flattering to his self-esteem.

Sometimes he wandered to the extreme verge of the range and on clear days saw far beneath him the smoke of great cities of the plains. He could be master among men as he was a master among mountains, if he chose. On such occasions he laughed cynically, scornfully, yet rarely did he ever give way to such emotions.

A great and terrible sorrow was upon him; cherishing a great passion he had withdrawn himself from the common lot to dwell upon it. From a perverted sense of expiation, in a madness of grief, horror and despair, he had made himself a prisoner to his ideas in the desert of the mountains. Back to his cabin he would hasten, and there surrounded by his living memories—deathless, yet of the dead!—he would recreate the past until dejection drove him abroad on the hills to meet God if not man—or woman. Night-day, sunshine-shadow, heat-cold, storm-calm; these were his life.

Having disburdened his faithful animals of their packs and having seen them safely bestowed for the winter in the corral he had built near the base of the cliff upon which his rude home was situated, he took his rifle one morning for one of those lonely walks across the mountains from which he drew such comfort because he fancied the absence of man conducted to the nearness of God. It was a delusion as old nearly as the Christian religion. Many had made themselves hermits in the past in remorse for sin and for love toward God; this man had buried himself in the wilderness in part for the first of these causes, in other part for the love of woman. In the days of swift and sudden change he had been constant to a remembrance, and abiding in his determination for five swift moving years. The world for him had stopped its progress in one brief moment five years back—the rest was silence. What had happened since then out yonder where people were mated he did not know and he did not greatly care.

In his visits to the settlements he asked no questions, he bought no papers, he manifested no interest in the world; some things in him had died in one fell moment, and there had been, as yet, no resurrection. Yet life, hope, and ambition do not die, they are indeed eternal. Resurgam!

Life with its tremendous activities, its awful anxieties, its wearing strains, its rare triumphs, its opportunities for achievement, for service; hope with its illuminations, its encouragements, its expectations, ambition with its stimulus, its force, its power; and greatest of all, love, itself alone—all three were latent in him. In touch with a woman these had gone. Something as powerful and as human must bring them back.

It was against nature that a man should as he should so live to himself alone. Some voice should cry in his soul in its ceremonies of futile remorse, vain expiations and benumbing recollection; some day he should burst these grave clothes self-wound about him and be once more a man and a master among men, rather than the hermit and the recluse of the solitudes.

He did not allow these thoughts to come into his life; indeed, it is quite likely that he scarcely realized them at all yet; such possibilities did not present themselves to him. Perhaps the man was a little mad that morning, maybe he trembled on the verge of a break—upward, downward, I know not so it be away—unconscious as he strode along the range that morning.

He had been walking for some hours, and as he grew thirsty it occurred to him to descend to the level of the brook which he heard below him and of which he sometimes caught a flashing glimpse through the trees. He scrambled down the rocks and found himself in a thick grove of pine. Making his way slowly and with great difficulty through the tangle of fallen timber which lay in every direction, the sound of a human voice, the last thing on earth to be expected in that wilderness, smote upon the fearful hollow of his ear.

AMUNDSEN'S BOLD DASH

mighty crevices seemed to stop us from going further, but it was not so serious as it appeared. Our dogs, which up to this time had covered a distance of about 700 kilometers, the last day's very hard work, ran this day 35 kilometers, the ascent being 5,000 feet, an almost incredible record. It took us only four days from the barrier to get up on the vast inland plateau.

We camped that night at a height of 10,600 feet. Here we had to kill twenty-four of our brave companions and keep eighteen, six for each of our three sledges. We stopped here four days on account of bad weather. Tired of this, we set out on the 28th of November. In a furious blizzard and in a dense snowdrift, absolutely nothing was to be seen, but we felt that, contrary to expectations, we were going fast down hill. The hypsometer gave us that day a descent of 600 feet.

We continued our march the next day in a gale, and a dense snowdrift got our faces badly frozen. We could see nothing. We reached that day 86 degrees, dead reckoning. The hypsometer indicated a fall of 800 feet. The next day was similar. The weather cleared a little at dinner time and exposed to our view a mighty mountain range to the east and not far off—only for a moment—and then it disappeared in the dense snowdrift.

On the 29th it calmed down and the sun shone, though it was not the only pleasant surprise he gave. In our course stretched a big glacier running toward the south. At its eastern end was the mountain range going in a southeasterly direction. Of the western part of it no view was to be had, it being hidden in the dense fog. At the foot of this glacier, the "Devil's glacier," a depot for six days was established, at 86.21 degrees south latitude. The hypsometer indicated 8,000 feet above sea level.

A Splendid Mountain View.

On Nov. 30 we began to climb the glacier. The lower part of it was very broken and dangerous. Moreover, the snow bridges very often burst. From our camp that night we had a splendid view over the mountain to the east. There was "Helmer Hansen" summit, the most remarkable of them all. It was 12,000 feet high and covered with such broken glaciers that in all probability no foothold was to be found. "Oscar Wistings," "Sverre Hassels," and "Olav Hjansland" mountains also lay there, beautifully illuminated in the rays of the bright sun. In the distance and only alternately to be viewed in the fog appeared from time to time "Mount Neilsen," with its summits and peaks about 15,000 feet high.

Only Saw Nearest Surroundings.

It took us three days to surmount the Devil's glacier, always misty. On the 1st of December we left this broken glacier, with holes and crevices without number, with its height of 9,100 feet. Before us, looking in the mist and snowdrift, like a frozen sea, appeared a light, sloping ice plateau, filled with small hummocks. The walk over this frozen sea was not pleasant. The ground under us was quite hollow, and it sounded as though we were walking on the bottoms of empty barrels. As it was, a man fell through, then a couple of dogs. We could not use our skis on this polished ice. Sledges had the best of it.

The place got the name "The Devil's Dancing Room." This part of our march was the most unpleasant. On Dec. 6 we got our greatest height, according to the hypsometer and ascertained 10,750 feet, at 87 degrees 40 minutes.

south. On Dec. 8 we came out of the bad weather. Once again the sun smiled down on us. Once again we could get an observation. Dead reckoning and observation were exactly alike—88 degrees 88 minutes 16.6 seconds south. Before us lay an absolutely plain plateau, only here and there marked with tiny sastrugi.

In the afternoon we passed 88 degrees 23 minutes (Shackleton's furthest south was 88 degrees 25 minutes). We camped and established our last depot, Depot No. 10. From 88 degrees 25 minutes the plateau began to slope down very gently and smoothly toward the other side. On Dec. 9 we reached 88 degrees 39 minutes; on Dec. 10, 88 degrees 56 minutes; Dec. 11, 88 degrees 15 minutes; Dec. 12, 88 degrees 39 minutes; Dec. 13, 88 degrees 45 minutes. Up to this time the observations and dead reckoning agreed remarkably well and we made out that we ought to be at the pole on Dec. 14, in the afternoon.

The Pole Attained.

That day was a beautiful one—a light breeze from the southeast; the temperature—23 celsius (9.4 degrees below zero fahrenheit), and the ground and sledging were perfect. The day went along as usual, and at 3 p. m. we made a halt.

According to our reckoning we had reached our destination. All of us gathered around the colors—a beautiful silk flag—all hands taking hold of it and planting it.

The vast plateau on which the pole is standing got the name of the "King Haakon VII. Plateau." It is a vast plain alike in all directions. Mile after mile during the night we circled around the camp.

In the fine weather we spent the following day taking a series of observations from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. The result gave us 89 degrees 55 minutes. In order to observe the pole as close as possible we traveled, as near south as possible, the remaining nine kilometers. On Dec. 16 there we camped. It was an excellent opportunity. There was a brilliant sun. Four of us took observations every hour of the day's twenty hours. The exact result will be the matter of a professional private report.

This much is certain—that we observed the pole as close as it is in human power to do it with the instruments we had—a sextant and an artificial horizon.

On Dec. 17 everything was in order on the spot. We fastened to the ground a little tent we had brought along, a Norwegian flag, and the Fram pennant on the top of it. The Norwegian home at the south pole was called "Pohleim." The distance from our winter quarters to the pole was about 1,400 kilometers. The average march day was twenty-five kilometers.

The Return Journey.

We started on the return trip on the 17th of December. Unusually favorable weather made our way home considerably easier than the journey to the pole. We arrived at our winter quarters, "Framheim," on the 25th of January, 1912, with two sledges and eleven dogs, all well.

The daily average speed on the return trip was 36 kilometers; the lowest temperature was -3 celsius (23.8 degrees below zero fahrenheit), the highest, -5 celsius (23 degrees above zero fahrenheit).

Among the results are the determination of the extent and character of the Ross barrier, and the discovery of the connection of South Victoria land and probably King Edward VII. land, with their continuation in the mighty mountains running toward the southeast, which were observed as far as 88 degrees south, but which in all probability continue across the Antarctic continent. The entire length of the newly discovered mountains is about 850 kilometers. They have been named "Queen Maud's range."

Survey of Great Interest.

The expedition to King Edward VII. land under the command of Lieutenant Prestud, has given excellent results. Scott's discoveries have been confirmed and the survey of the bay of Whales and of the Barrier Dome by the Prestud party are of great interest. A good geological collection from King Edward VII. and South Victoria land is being brought home.

The Fram arrived at the bay of Whales on Jan. 9. She had been delayed by the "Roaring Forties" on account of the easterly winds. On Jan. 16 the Japanese expedition arrived at the bay of Whales and landed on the barrier near our winter quarters.

We left the bay of Whales on Jan. 20. It was a long voyage, with contrary winds. All are well.

Newfoundland's population is 242,000, according to the complete census returns for 1911, just made public, an increase of 10 per cent for the last decade.

MEXICO CITY IS
ON THE DEFENSEField Guns Placed Around the National Palace.

MADERO'S FOES MENACE CITY

Throughout the Whole Disturbed Republic the Rebel Movement Daily Is Gaining Strength, and the Exhibitions of Unrest Now Are Manifested in Quarters Close to the Capital—Bloody Engagements Reported.

Mexico City, March 9.—The government is taking steps for the defense of the city. It began today placing field guns around the national palace.

The town of Acatlan in Chapultepec has been practically destroyed after three days' fighting.

The people of Vera Cruz have succumbed to the repeated attacks of the rebels, who now control the city.

It is estimated that 400 men have been killed in the fighting in the state of Morelos.

Only the resignation of Madero will avail in establishing peace, the rebels declare.

Washington Keenly Concerned.

Washington, March 9.—Official reports from Mexico indicate the beginning of what promises to be a formidable movement against the government in the state of Mexico, within a short distance of the nation's capital. The revolution in this state, which has developed in two sections under different leaders, each of whom is recognized as having strength and influence, is looked upon as one of the most serious features of the present situation.

Reports of an engagement between federals and rebels about forty miles south of Agua Prieta, which is on the line opposite Douglas, Ariz., were received by the state and war departments. Marauding bands are reported as threatening to cross the river into the mountains of that portion of Texas.

HAS HAD ENOUGH

Youthful Murderer Pleads For Parole From Prison.

New Albany, Ind., March 9.—Thomas J. Hoal, the young bandit, who shot and killed J. H. Fawcett, cashier of the Merchants' National bank, and shot J. K. Woodward, president of the bank, in an effort to rob the institution on the morning of Nov. 11, 1909, and who is serving a life sentence at Michigan City, imposed by a Harrison county jury at Corydon in May, 1910, has written to Prosecuting Attorney Bulliet begging his assistance in his efforts to obtain his liberty. He says he has written to Governor Marshall asking that his sentence be reduced to an indeterminate sentence so his case may come under the jurisdiction of the parole board of the prison. Hoal says:

"Considering the circumstances of the case and my extreme youth, I feel that the sentence of life imprisonment is too severe. I assure you that two years of reflection has convinced me that I have made a serious mistake in the start of my life; but I am not a boy of a criminal disposition, and if I succeed in getting this reduction of sentence I may look forward to becoming a useful citizen. I do not ask that I be granted a full and free pardon, or that I be immediately released on parole."

Too Many Wives, She Says.

South Bend, Ind., March 9.—Jerehia Hollan is wanted by the police to answer a charge of wife desertion, a warrant having been issued for his arrest. It is stated that as soon as he is located and brought back to South Bend, he will be charged with bigamy. His wife, who is fifty years old, makes the complaint, alleging that he is a bigamist with six other wives.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

It is announced that Dr. Sun Yat Sen will retire to private life after a government has been formed in China.

The foreign legations at Peking are becoming anxious over the continuance of looting at many places and the fact that the bandits are not being punished.

There is a growing prospect of a suspension of mining in the anthracite districts, which it is believed will last much longer than a month and may end in a long strike.

President Yuan Shih Kai of China will take the oath of office by telegraph. He will also submit the names of the members of his cabinet to the Nanking assembly in the same way.

Mrs. D. B. Good of St. Louis and Mrs. Fred Grant of Adrian, Mich., were the only persons killed when the Wabash limited went off the bridge over Redwood creek, near West Lebanon, Ind.

A Trenton department store was fined $300 for selling cigarettes in violation of the law passed at the last session of the New Jersey legislature. The cigarettes were seized in the store by the game warden.

The manse of the First Presbyterian church at Caldwell, N. J., the birthplace of Grover Cleveland, has been purchased for the Cleveland Memorial Association, which will hold it as a memorial to the former president.

ZERO WEATHER DUE IN MARCH

Parson Hicks Declares Temperature Will be Flirting With Zero Toward Close of Month.

DISASTER FOR FRUIT CROP

Prognosticator Avers That Average Temperature Will be March Normal—Lots of Wind.

If predictions of some of the weather prophets are to be believed the people need not comfort themselves with the belief that the last cold wave of the season has swept over the country.

Mr. Hicks predicts that March will open with nice weather and according to the old saying will come in like a lamb and go out like a lion. Toward the close of them both, between the 24th and 28th, Hicks says we will have a cold wave which will bring the temperature down to 15 below zero in North Dakota and that the mercury will be flirting with the zero mark in this region. This will mean good-bye to the fruit crop as the warm weather which will prevail early in March will bring the buds out far enough that all the fruit will be killed. His forecast for March is as follows:

1st to 3d storm wave Heavy wind and rain storms over southern, central and eastern sections, 4th to 6th, fair period. Clear nights and sunny days from the states of Pacific slopes and rocky mountain region and the middle west. THAT'S because aluminum is a better distributor and retainer of heat than other materials of which cooking utensils are made.

You can cook quicker and you therefore save fuel.

"Wear-Ever" utensils are made without joints, seams or soldered parts, from thick, hard sheet aluminum. They have no coating to peel, crack or blister. They cannot rust, cannot form poisonous compounds with acid fruits or foods, and they last a generation.

Let us supply you with the one-quart sample saucepan advertised in magazines—and show you "WEAR-EVER" other utensils bearing the "Wear-Ever" trademark.
